Respondent Kevin L. Greer appeals from his decree of dissolution contending that the child support award made by the trial court is excessive.

There were three children born to this marriage, namely, Kevin, born in 1975, Kristine, born in 1977, and Kathryn, born in 1978. Pursuant to a pretrial stipulation, Gwendolyn received custody of the children. According to said stipulation the only issues remaining for the court to decide were those of child support, distribution of a tax refund and Gwendolyn's request for attorney fees.

Gwendolyn receives $604 per month in ADC and food stamps. Kevin has net income of approximately $250 per week. The trial court ordered that he keep existing medical insurance on said children and in addition pay $139 per month per child. It was further ordered that he be entitled to claim the children as dependents on his tax return so long as his support is current. The ordered support is within established guidelines and the award of the trial court is affirmed. See In Re Zoellner's Marriage, 219 N.W.2d 517, 525 (Iowa 1974).

Gwendolyn was awarded $600 for attorney fees by the trial court and requests attorney fees on appeal. Kevin challenges the awarding of attorney fees. We affirm the award of $600 but make no further award.

AFFIRMED.
